In London. A large number of western and lower province members came in yesterday, and the delegates from Ontario and Quebec, who always arrive last, reached the capital this morning. A wide diversity of opinion exists among the members as to the probable outcome of the session. The proposed reciprocity pact with the United States is, of course, the foremost item on the agenda. The program in regard to the measure will likely be determined in a large degree by the prospects at Washington. A hard struggle is in prospect here. It is generally believed that the opposition will resume filibustering and will persist in its efforts to block any progress of the bill. If this course is pursued a dissolution of parliament and a general election, with reciprocity as the chief issue, would appear to be inevitable, though the government leaders affect to believe that such a possibility is very remote.

SEEKS NEW MEMBERS

Campaign Is Now On To Increase the Membership Roll To At Least Three Hundred.

That the Industrial and Commercial Club is alive to the fact that strenuous efforts are needed to bring Janesville to the front are evidenced by the work that is being done by that organization. Under the direction of E. E. Lane, the secretary of the organization, the headquarters in the Jackson block is a busy place. Information of all sorts at the disposal of the members, correspondence which may lead to the establishment of several road sized factories, matters relative to the freight rates on commodities in our land and broken lots, are all being handled and adjusted through this office.

Mr. Lane has proved himself an ideal man for the place. He is thoroughly alive to Janesville's needs and requirements and is anxious to secure the cooperation of the business men in making this city the leading metropolis of Southern Wisconsin. ARE MAILING CHECKS TO ALL HOLDERS OF CELEBRATION BONDS

Forty One Per Cent Will Be Sent Out To All Persons Who Subscribed To Fund.

Checks to the individuals who subscribed for the bonds for the recent Military celebration, are being made out and signed today, and will be mailed at once to each person who aided in making the affair a success. At a meeting of the executive committee yesterday afternoon it was found that the sum of forty one per cent could be paid and still leave enough money in the treasury to pay several small bills that are known to have been contracted, but which have not been presented.

Some thirty-five of the bond holders have turned their bonds over to the committee, which was soliciting funds for the new Mercy Hospital and these checks will not be mailed, but will be presented to the bond-holders by a member of the committee in person, accompanied by the hospital committee, at which time the transfer will be made. This was the decision of the executive committee after a conference with the hospital committee composed of Dan Ryan, Joseph Donahue, Harry Schmidley, who solicited the bonds.

The idea of securing these bonds for the hospital originated some days ago and the committee working in its behalf were successful. The executive committee of the celebration, however, felt that to relieve themselves of all responsibility in the matter the checks should be made out to individuals as in many cases they had pledged their word personally to this effect, and to redeem their pledges decided to give the checks to the individuals personally, where they had subscribed, and otherwise mail them.

The hospital committee will not in the neighborhood of some four hundred dollars for their efforts and doubtless many others who had not been collected will turn their checks over to this fund when they receive them. The idea is a good one and met with ready response from the individuals approached.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST.
Cloudy and unsettled; probably rain tonight.

THE HOSPITAL.

Through the activity of the Sisters of Mercy, Janesville bids fair to have a new hospital, with room and equipment to handle a large number of patients, within the next few months. It is a most laudable effort these good Sisters have undertaken and every citizen should aid to make it successful. Within the past few days several public spirited citizens have solicited funds for this purpose by requesting persons holding bonds issued by the recent joint committee of the Industrial and Commercial club and the United Spanish War Veterans, to turn their bonds over to the hospital. By this method several hundred dollars have thus far been subscribed which will go towards the building fund. The committee have announced they will pay forty-one per cent on the original investment and as this committee secured in the neighborhood of a thousand dollars' worth of bonds it will net the building fund in the neighborhood of four hundred dollars.

The hospital is a semi-public institution. It should be a matter of special pride to the citizens of Janesville and they should give it the financial support it deserves. While the funds raised by the special committee within the past few days has been a help, it is not enough by any means and other bondholders who receive their checks for the forty-one per cent might find it convenient to endorse this money over to this fund.

MEANS BUSINESS.

"Janesville must be kept clean" appears to be the slogan of Mayor Nichols and his street commissioner. On Monday, Street Commissioner Wilkins prosecuted in court a violator of the city ordinance which prohibits putting refuse and garbage into the streets. He has also placed through-out the city signs prohibiting the dumping of refuse on vacant lots. Mayor Nichols, in another column, also calls particular attention to dumping refuse in the river. With the other cities starting crusades against the flies, Janesville comes to the front with a campaign against the breeding places for flies by keeping the city clean. It is a crusade in which all citizens should unite.

THE INCOME TAX.

Excuses that are appearing throughout the state relative to the new state income tax law are amusing. The truth of the matter is the income tax law, like many other bits of choice reform legislation, was never meant to pass. It was part of the socialist republican platform last fall, but when it came into the legislature for consideration there were not enough conservative republicans to be found to kill it, so it had to pass. In fact, if the truth be known, the few socialist members of the legislature "put it over" on the rest of their fellow members by always being on the job and watching every move made. The laws passed will keep both the lawyers of the state and supreme court busy for some time to unravel.

NOT DEMOCRATIC.

After each legislative session of the so-called "reform element" one hears the talk that Wisconsin is going to be a democratic state at the next election, and when the election time comes round it goes republican by a good, wide margin. Wisconsin tried democratic policies several years ago and the taste did not prove satisfactory, and it is safe to say, even now, with all this talk going round the state, that the republicans will control the state government at the 1912 election as it has in the past.

The optimists now claim that the forest fires in the Porcupine mining district of Ontario did a great benefit in that it cleared the land for mining purposes.

Apparently Janesville does not want to support a good ball team from the seeming indifference that it shows towards the games held in the city weekly.

Medical men have discovered a new one. The latest question is, "Have you got your aura about you?"

Did you ever notice that the opposition press is always finding family jars in the Taft official family?

During these dog days the congressional outcrops ought to be severely muzzled.

UNCLE WALT

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)
By WALT MASON.

I have a little hobby, and ride it every day, and it is fine and nobby, and swell and rehashing. If people would but heed it, this world would brighter be. A little world for all the nations need it as much as liberty. But when I would expound it, the people all disperse; I hear them say, "Confound it!" Sometimes they even curse. And when a friend I visit, he whispers at the door: "Here comes the great man!" It is the champion village bore!" No matter where I travel, the same old tale is told. I see men scratching their heads when they hear me belching. They raise their eyebrows, these third, nervous souls; they crawl into the cellars, they shin up lofty poles. Old women always dodge me, likewise the village hells, and say they'd like to lodge me in jail or padded cells. The road is rough and ratty on which my tribulations tread; even children say I'm nutty, and throw things at my head. And so I'm sad and sobby, my voice to sorrow pitched; I can't explain my hobby, for folks won't stand unbelieved.

POLICE CHIEFS TO MEET IN MADISON

Annual Convention of Wisconsin Association Will Open Tomorrow Afternoon in Elks' Club House.

Arrangements are all completed for the meeting of the Wisconsin Association of Chiefs of Police, which will open tomorrow in Madison. The convention will be held in the club house of the Madison Elks and will commence its business session at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Chief of Police George Ambrose of this city, who is a member of the association, has been asked to read a paper at the gathering, but will be unable to attend. Chiefs of police from practically all the principal cities of Wisconsin will be present at the convention. Subjects of interest to the work in which the men are engaged were slated for discussion. In other cities of the state it is the practice for the city to send the head of the police department to this annual meeting, expense money being provided for the chief of police, as it is felt that the comparison of methods and the new ideas gained through the conference are very helpful.

AUTO WAS STRUCK BY FAST PASSENGER

C. P. Garst Had Narrow Escape From Serious Injury When Car Stripped on South Janesville Crossing Last Night.

C. P. Garst of this city had a narrow escape from serious injury or death last night when his auto tumbled on the road crossing of the Northwestern tracks at South Janesville in front of 511, East passenger from Chicago, last night. Mr. Garst was on his way home from DeJolt and had stopped to wait for a freight train which preceded the passenger. When it had passed he noticed that the passenger was following at some distance was plenty of time to make the crossing, but as he reached the planks his engine went "dead" here at 8:55 was swiftly approaching and he had only time to jump from the machine before it struck. The hind part of the auto was struck by the engine which badly smashed the right wheel and guard and also the springs. He was able to start the machine, however, and drive the remainder of the way to Janesville without mishap.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.
DIOCLETIAN AND HIS BATHS.

That the ancient Romans, or some of them at least, kept their bodies clean is proved by the ruins of very extensive baths found at Rome. The Baths of Diocletian, for instance, the ruins of which are in evidence today, covered an area about one mile in circumference, and there are others. It is said that when the Baths of Diocletian were in full operation they must have accommodated not less than three thousand bathers at a time. With some of the emperors bathing seems to have been a sort of duty, as they expended vast sums in the erection of bath houses and bathing apparatus. Diocletian, however, does not depend entirely on the baths for his place in history. He became emperor in 284, A. D., and abdicated in 305. Two years before his abdication he became very active in persecuting Christians, so much so that in the annals of martyrdom his reign is alluded to as "the Diocletian Era." It is said that the Diocletian baths were built by Christians, 40,000 of them being compelled to do the work.

GETS NEW FEDERAL LAW ON COILER INSPECTION

Roundhouse Foreman Swan is in receipt of instructions regarding the application of the new law, effective July 1, 1911, relative to the inspection and testing of locomotive boilers and their appurtenances. Under this law it will be necessary for the mechanical officer at each point where boiler work is done to have stay bolts and steam gauges tested at least once a month. The old law required these tests to be made only once in three months and this change will necessitate an increase in the number of reports as well as in the amount of work in connection with the testing.

Every detail pertaining to the careful examination of locomotives to decrease the danger of explosion is carefully covered in the new statute and the responsibility for its enforcement devolves upon John J. Ensign, chief inspector for the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, D. C. Regular detailed reports carefully prepared and sworn to before a notary public must be sent to him after each inspection and other sets of reports of a more general nature must be sent him annually. Many persons not familiar with railroad work have the impression that these tests and inspections are inflicted upon the railway officials against their will. Adherence to these rules not only insures safety to the public and to the lives and usefulness of the employees of the railway, but at the same time it vitally concerns the savings of the company. It is a matter of economy for the railway company and the time and expense involved in making these tests and the necessary reports is more than counterbalanced by the insurance given by having the machinery of the road always in first-class condition.

The work of preparing for the application and observance of these new regulations will seem rather troublesome at first as is found with any change from an old established custom, but when the necessary forms are prepared and the officials and clerks are familiar with the requirements the system will not be found very troublesome. Local employees do not anticipate any great amount of inconvenience from the change after they learn more thoroughly what is required of them under the new law.

The chief inspector of the Interstate Commerce Commission has a force of district inspectors working under his direction and these are required to visit the shops at the various stations at stated times to conduct tests when members of the law are lived up to.

TURN-TABLE CLEANED THIS MORNING READY FOR USE

The work of jacking up the turntable for the purpose of cleaning underneath was done this morning. The framework and gear of the table is being given a careful overhauling as is regularly done every three months and at the same time the electrical connections by which power is obtained for operating the table is examined and minor repairs are being made. In the old house a tank is being fitted for cleaning waste for box packing. Old waste that becomes filled with grit and dirt will be thrown into this tank and boiled in oil and when thoroughly boiled will then be placed on a slanting table to drip some of the oil. By this process all the dirt will be removed from the waste, and when it has been in use and thus thoroughly saturated with oil it is much more serviceable as box packing.

Ray Roberts is busy today taking the first six months' examination regularly given to firemen. He has served the necessary six months' probation and is hopeful that he will pass the test successfully and get the necessary recommendation from the foreman and engineers with whom he has served.

DISMISSED CHARGES AGAINST HOPKINS

Man Accused of Theft From Roscoe Saloon Discharged By Judge in Municipal Court This Morning.

Charges against John Hopkins, accused of the theft of a bag containing twenty-two dollars in money from the saloon of Thomas Roscoe, 14 South River street, were dismissed and the defendant discharged by Judge C. F. Elliff in municipal court this morning. The grounds for the dismissal were based on the fact that there was no testimony given in the examination yesterday that Hopkins had been behind the bar on the evening the theft was committed nor had he been alone in the saloon.

The testimony given by Mrs. Kate Kennedy and her husband, Robert Kennedy late yesterday afternoon were responsible for a large share of the blame being removed from Hopkins. They testified that on the evening on which the robbery was committed, Hopkins, who had been working for them, came to their home in a half-intoxicated condition and before them counted out thirty-five dollars in money, which he placed in different pockets about his clothes. He had intended to start for DeJolt that evening and had placed twenty dollars in one pocket saying that that would take him to DeJolt and he would have fifteen dollars after he got there.

Hopkins was placed on the stand and said he had come down town that night with Mrs. Kennedy and named four saloons which he had visited. He disclaimed any knowledge of the theft. The court held that the evidence in the case was not sufficient to convict Hopkins and that there was as much evidence against others in the saloon as against Hopkins.

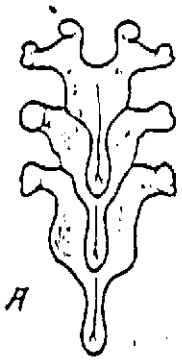

Case Settled: The case of the Janesville Water company against Moore & Lovelace, cement contractors, which was to come up in municipal court this morning, was dismissed. A settlement was reached out of court.

LAW IS EFFECTIVE ON AUGUST FIRST

Change Made In Correction Laws Changes Date Named In Motor License Bill.
Janesville motorists will be interested to know that the new motor car registration law will not go into effect until Aug. 1, although it was announced that it would be effective July 17. The change was made in the correction bill passed on Friday in order to give the secretary of state time to prepare for the work of registration. Auto and motorcycle owners who now have licenses need not register until January, but all applicants came under the law and will be compelled to pay the license fee for the remainder of the year. The fee is $5 for automobiles and $2 for motorcycles, instead of $3 as has been stated frequently.

FARMERS, ATTENTION!

For evidence that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who have tampered with the farm lines of this company running into Janesville.

During the past two weeks we have had many cases of twisted wires, thus short circuiting and putting the entire circuit out of business. More trouble has been experienced in this short time on nine different lines around Janesville than would be natural in the course of a whole year. We are firmly convinced that the cause is not from weather conditions as these are favorable but must be from some individual or individuals, therefore this reward.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

IN THE state of Missouri the Widows Pension Law which was passed in the last session of the legislature is being put into effect.

In the famous reform bill of Chancellor Lloyd-George of England there is a clause providing for a pension or allowance for maternity cases.

By the Missouri law any needy widow is entitled to receive a sum not to exceed ten dollars a month for one child attending school and as much as five dollars a month for each additional one.

The idea of the bill is to enable poor widows to keep their children at school without being obliged to go out of work themselves and thus deprive the children of their birthright of a mother's care and a well-kept home. Incidentally it is said that such a scheme would cost no more than the board of the children if the widow were obliged to place them in asylums.

The idea of the maternity pension, as I understand it, is to supply state aid that will make it unnecessary for any woman to work directly before or after the birth of her child and to insure proper care and comforts at this time to the poorest mother in the land. In at least one state we already have a law making it illegal for a woman to work for a certain number of weeks before and after her child is born, and this maternity pension is surely the logical and inevitable corollary to such a law.

Now, don't you think there are two splendid bills?

And I am calling them to your attention today because I hope that knowing about them will inspire you to want them in your own community.

Don't you think it would be splendid if destitute widows and mothers-to-be—and incidentally the next generation—all over the world were protected by such laws?

Very well, then, why not do what you can to see that they are passed in your corner of "all the world?"

You don't know how you can do that? Well, do you belong to a woman's club or a big Sunday school class or a Home Missionary Society or any large organization that could be brought to take an interest in such things?

If you do, why not tell this society at its next meeting about these laws and get it to pass a resolution approving them and ordering its secretary to write to its state representatives and senators asking them what can be done about such legislation.

Judge Porterfield, of Kansas City, Missouri, is putting the Missouri law into effect for the first time, and he doubtless would be glad to send a copy of it and information about its workings to any woman interested in it. And information about the maternity pension could surely be obtained from the English State Department.

Surely this is a subject in which any woman with the least bit of altruism in her makeup, that is, any woman whose unselfishness extends beyond her love for her own immediate family and makes her care something what is to become of those myriad "sisters under the skin" who are less fortunate than she, cannot fail to be deeply interested.

The Kitchen Cabinet

Being well and wisely and the care of life will slip from you, its vibrations divide into nothingness.

THE PUNGENT PEPPER.

The delightful pepper will soon be with us in abundance, and as it has been canned successfully, we may have the pungent flavor in many dishes if we care to take the trouble of putting them up in their season.

When used as cups or cases to hold salads or meat mixtures they add to the flavor as well as the appearance.

A remnant of chicken minced and a bit of white sauce added which has been made of cream is a most toothsome dish.

Bratons are almost as good as sweetbreads and when used in creamed dishes, in pepper shells, it is difficult to tell the difference. The expense is much less.

When preparing the peppers for filling, wash carefully and cut off the stem end, remove the seeds and white pulp. Cut a thin slice from the other end and the peppers will stand firmly. Parboil them for five to ten minutes, and they are then ready for any filling. Put a little water in the pan, arrange the peppers in it and put into a hot oven to bake for twenty minutes.

There is scarcely a salad that is not improved by the addition of a few slices of green or red pepper.

Sliced tomato and cucumbers, shredded green pepper and chopped onion with French dressing is a salad that is most popular.

Green Pepper Salad.—Cut equal parts of hard cooked eggs and green peppers into strips. Add half as much shredded celery and a tablespoonful of pearl onions, those that come in bottles. Mix with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce leaves.

Another that is fully as good is: Shredded olives, shredded pimientos and finely cut celery with a little chopped onion. Use either a simple French dressing or a mayonnaise.

See No Danger in Hair.

As is well known, Australiungary has almost a monopoly in the preparation of false hair for the fashionable ladies of Europe. There is much alarm just now, inasmuch as in various warehouses, docks and railways there are something like 40,000 kilograms of human hair awaiting delivery. This quantity of hair would be equal to over three tons in our system of weights. All this hair has a Chinese origin, and it is urged that it should not be allowed to leave the warehouses on account of the infection which it might carry. The dealers, however, complain that these precautions are unnecessary, for the whole stock was shipped before the outbreak.

Too True.

When a fellow is between the devil and the deep sea he generally goes to the former.

A STYLISH DINNER DRESS IN DIAMANTE EFFECT.

Glittering gowns are the craze this year and small beads, rhinestones and imitation jewels, sewed to the thin, tiny chiffons and marquisettes make lovely lines as well as brilliancy. This dinner gown for a young matron is made of dull citron green chiffon embroidered with green, bronze and coral colored beads. The pulled sleeve is a new feature and hints at a coming style. The basque, or peplum falling below the belt line are also indicative of a new period of fashion—a revival of the time when Empire styles began to yield to Restoration effects.

Linen or Pongee Workbag

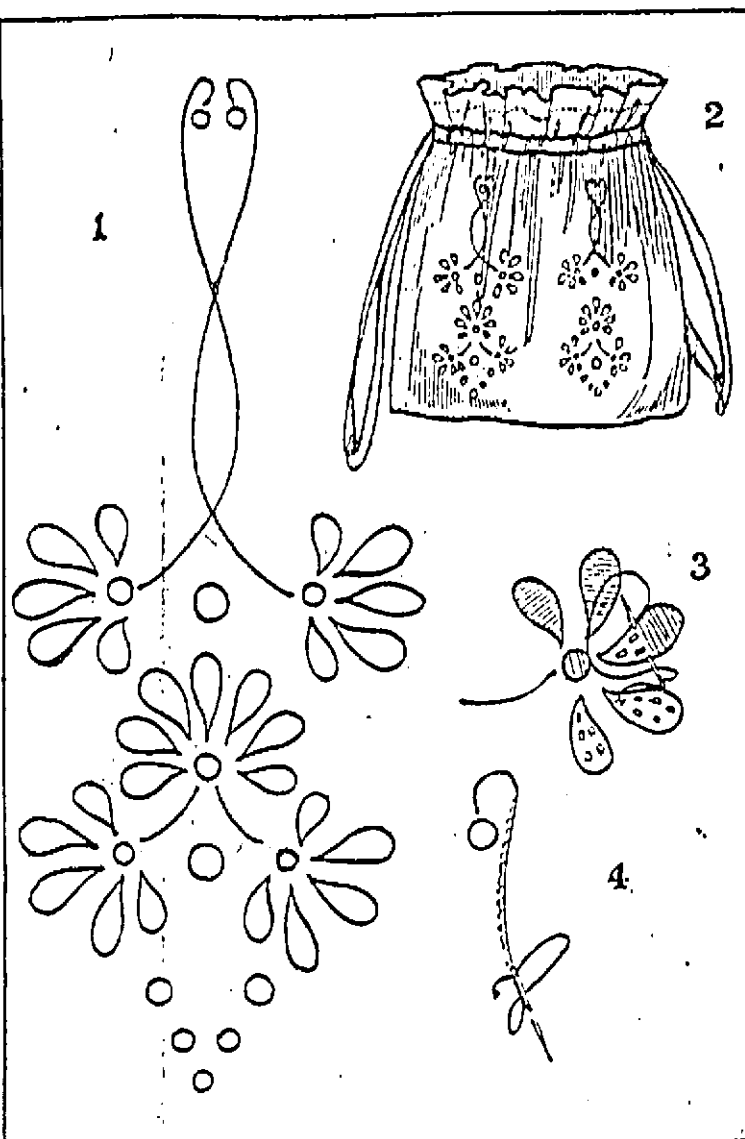

FIGURE No. 1 shows the design of the design very carefully with a complete and ready to transfer on the material used. To transfer the pattern, place a piece of transfer or impression paper face down on the material. Then with great care place the design correctly on the material and make it perfectly firm with thumb, tacks on all the four corners.

After this is done, go over each part of the design very carefully with a sharp lead pencil. The embroidery of this bag is very simple, as can be seen by the sketch.

This design might be worked out effectively in old blue with a natural pongee or linen.

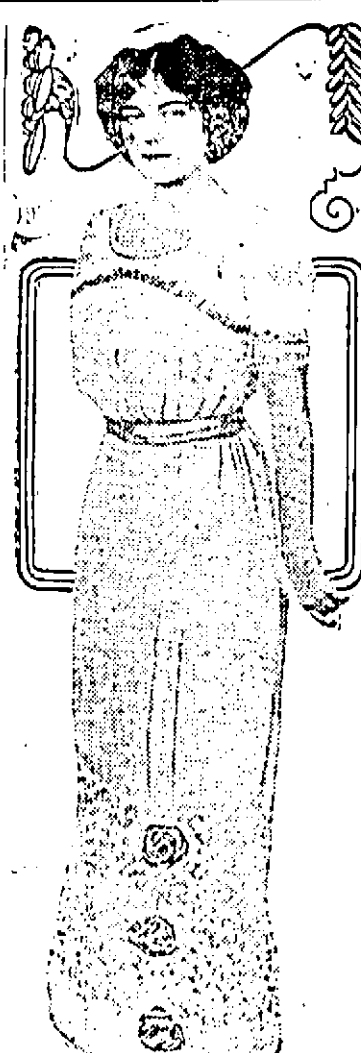

A SOUTHERN BEAUTY OF DISTINGUISHED ANCESTRY.

Washington, D. C.—Washington was recently stirred by the visit of Mrs. Walter W. Watts, on the score of her personal charm and her family affiliations. Through her father, Mr. W. E. Reed of Savannah, who held a commission in the Confederate Army, she is a descendant of Revolutionary notables and the Reeds of New England of which latter family, Thos. B. Reed was a member. Through her mother the blood of several distinguished Virginian and North Carolinian families runs in her veins. Mrs. Watts is also a daughter of the American Revolution, taking an active part in the affairs of that organization.

DOLLY.

This pretty little dolly may be used for tumblers or finger bowls. The scallop is padded and closely buttonholed. The flowers and leaves are worked solid, with the dots as eyelets and the stems in the outline stitch. Use mercerized cotton No. 25 for the embroidery.

THE PURE WHITE EVENING FROCK IS ALWAYS CHARMING.

This exquisite little frock combines white chiffon, lace and pearl embroidery in airy and delicate effect. The tulle is of white chiffon hung over white muslin, a band of rich Venetian lace bordering the tulle. On this band are set three white satin roses and the bodice is of chiffon, the upper part veiling a yoke of the Venetian lace and a line of pearl trimming outlining this lace yoke. Pearl fringe finishes the short lace sleeve. The such is of faded white satin with pearl fringe on the end.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

OATMEAL.

Several of the millers of rolled oats are roasting the cereal, after the manner of the ordinary prepared breakfast foods, recommending their products on the ground that they are already partly cooked and require less time to prepare than other brands. All temperatures above 100 degrees is injurious to food, but most of all the dry heat, although it may destroy certain pathogenic germs. It is especially important that oats should be cooked in a double boiler or fireless cooker. The unroasted oats may be distinguished by being whiter and more easily powdered. Soaked for 12 hours with enough moisture to form a tough paste, and thoroughly chewed, so that no taste remains, the uncooked oats are more digestible than the cooked, and form a complete ration, containing every element of nutrition.

A LUXURIOUS GROWTH OF HAIR

Does Not Follow Neglect of the Scalp

Avoid from combing it when they think necessary many people give no attention whatever to their hair. Then when the hair begins to fall out it never occurs to them that their trouble is the result of personal carelessness.

An occasional application of Newbro's Herpeloid will not only prevent loss of hair but permits a luxuriant growth.

Herpeloid kills the germ that causes dandruff and to this germ most hair losses are attributable. It keeps the scalp clean and free from dirt, allowing the hair to grow unimpeded by accumulation of dandruff.

Newbro's Herpeloid is sold by all druggists and its manufacturers have such confidence in its germ destroying power that they authorize all druggists to guarantee the one dollar size bottles to do as claimed or money refunded.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops. Send 10c in postage for sample and booklet to The Herpeloid Co., Dept. H, Detroit, Mich. J. P. Baker, special agent.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, bearing-down feelings, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But thousands of irritable, nervous, tired and broken-down women have restored their health and strength by the use of Swampfoot, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy.

Swampfoot brings new life and activity to the kidneys, the cause of such troubles.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swampfoot, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy will do for them. Every reader of this paper, who has not already tried it, may address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y., and receive sample bottle free by mail. You can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores.

WHAT DO YOU DO TO PROVIDE ENTERTAINMENT?

Summer Time and Cool Home Ideas Either in the City or Country—Can You Tell About It?

There are so many means of providing entertainment for your guests during the summer months that it would not be hard to make some suggestions that would benefit others.

The idea of giving a party or an entertainment in the hot summer months is always a burden to the average hostess. How to entertain her guests without making them feel bored or uncomfortable from the heat is a problem.

This contest is open to all women readers of the Gazette. Send in your suggestions to the Feature Editor and try for one of the prizes offered. Your articles do not have to be too long but should explain in detail your plans.

Of course, the more novel the idea the better it is. Men are never out of place but the question is what to do at a picnic, launch parties, moonlight rides up and down the river, even hay rides and clam bakes are possibilities now.

Green corn is coming and if you have never had a corn on the cob supper out in the woods beside some stream or lake, or at least at some farmhouse, you have missed something.

There are so many ways of enjoying a summer outing with friends that your suggestions will be invaluable. Write on one side of the paper only and address to the Feature Editor of the Gazette.

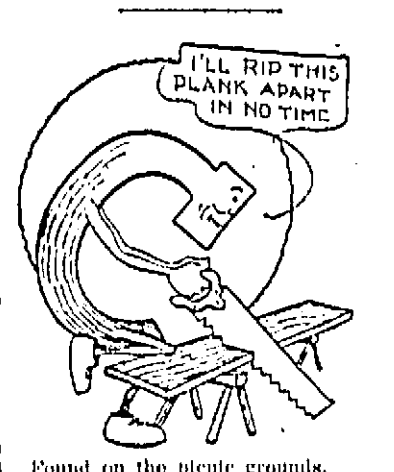

First Prize—Caloric, Fireless Cook-stove.

Second Prize—Set of 45 pieces of Flow Blue Dishes.

Third Prize—Vacuum Bottle.

Fourth Prize—Sampson Kitchen Scales.

The contest will end August 1st.

MELONS AND OTHER SOUTHERN FRUITS COMING INTO MARKET

Southern Fruits Good in Both Quality and Price; Potatoes Slowly Coming Down—Fruits in General Good.

The palates of those who delight in vegetables and fruits bid fair to be well pleased by the quality of those delicacies which are supplied them this year. Throughout the country, the quality of all products seems to be as good or better than ever before.

In the fruit market particularly is this true. The peaches which have put in an appearance so far have been excellent and while in some sections of the South, from whence the supply has come so far, the quantity is not quite as large as heretofore, the quality has been up to the highest standard. The shipments so far have been entirely from the South, Texas and the row of states along the southern coast, but there is no reason apparent now why the northern crop should not be as good.

Melons Are Good.
Watermelons have lately put in an appearance in the market and have been of a very good quality. Those who have eaten them have pronounced them as fine as they ever knew at this time of the year, and in addition the prices have been quite reasonable. All that have been received so far, have been from Arizona, chiefly, with a few from other Southern states. The crop this year bears promise of being not only most excellent, but also of being sufficient to supply all needs.

Muskmelons and cantaloupes are also beginning to show up in the market, and although the quality has been nothing exceptional, they are still very fair for this early part of the season. Like the watermelons, the smaller fruit has come, so far, entirely from Arizona and the other Southern states, but before very long the home-grown product should be ready for market.

Berries Nearly Gone.

In the small fruit market, nothing more can be expected from the raspberry crop. Both the black and red varieties of this luscious berry have come and gone, and although the quantity was not very large, the quality was quite up to standard. Gooseberries, too, have been few, but very good in quality. They, also, are about exhausted. Plums have just made their preliminary bow to the public, and, of course, all of foreign growth. Currants have been good and have lasted well, and this excellent fruit can still be found in the market. If the housewife still wishes to put up some more for future use, Apples, what few there have been, have not shown any special promise, and their prices have been very high. Indeed, the fruit was not exceptionally good for eating and was too high to be used for any other purpose. Cherries, while they were quite abundant and of very good quality, have gone and except for the California product, which is shipped in, cannot be found in the market any longer.

Potatoes Are High.

New potatoes will cling to the upper end, and although the prices are sinking slowly, seem to be firm at their upper range. The quality has been good throughout this much of the season, but many farmers have been in such a hurry to take advantage of the high prices, that they have brought immature tubers to the market. These, although quite excellent in taste, lack very much the proper nutritive powers. Other vegetables, such as cabbages, lettuce, onions and tomatoes, have been fairly good, but as yet have not been brought in in very large quantities. However, the prices have not been especially high, and some of the vegetables, such as cabbages, string beans, lettuce and beets, have been very good value for the money.

The following is a list of the average prices in vogue in Jansville in some of the more common fruits and vegetables:

Bananas, 20c.
Oranges, 30c to 35c.
Pineapples, 15c to 25c.
Gonocberries (several), 10c.

Peaches, 25c.
Currants, $1.10 per crate.

Vegetables.

Potatoes, per bush, new, 50c.
Carrots, per bunch, 5c.
Lettuce, per bunch, 5c.

Onions, green, per bunch, 2 for 5c.
Radishes, per bunch, 3 for 10c.
Cucumbers, 10c.

HONEST MEDICINES VERSUS FAKE.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Kidney and Urinary Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Kidney and Urinary Pills has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley's Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious.—Badger Drug Co.

FARM NOTES.

Not Written for Farmers.

By H. L. RANN.

What has become of the old fashioned corn husking bee? It seems to have gone the way of the Congress when and the family toothbrush. In the good old days folks used to husk with their hands and feet. Now they don't dare look a nibble in the face unless they have on more armor than a deep-sea diver. The girls used to think it worth while to sweat their sweethearts on the jaw with a red ear and a husk.

Thus earn a kiss, but if the young folks wanted to spoon at a husking bee nowadays they would go unloved to a mournful grave. The times are sadly out of joint.

The mechanical milk maker makes the lot of the dairy cow as cheerful as the man who has just pocketed the 15 ball on a miscalculation. You can clamp an easy holder to one of those milkers and hold her in a clutch that she couldn't break with a half Nelson. It is about as pleasant for a warm-blooded cow to be rudely seized by the leg fingers of a mechanical milker as to be drained by a hired man with the clubblades, but this soon wears off and a feeling of sweet peace ensues, giving the milker the joyous look of a man who is removing a thorn from a jack-knife. The mechanical milk maker has a suction which would draw the tooth out of a disc harrow, and when it is detached and swung over a stanchion it heaves a sigh like a slowly strangled carp. In some places the mechanical milk is attached to the rear organ, filling the home with melody and seafoam scrippings. This device is a greater labor saver than the water-cooled carpet sweeper with 120-inch wheels.

The Taming of Red Butte Western

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright, 1910, by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Later, however, when this special was once more in motion westward, the desert held him upon him with the grip which first bewitched him, and he was thankful that the builders of Angels had pitched their tents and driven their stakes in the desert's edge rather than in his heart.

It was past noon when the shrill whistle of the locomotive signaled the approach to the division headquarters, and he was thankful that the builders of Angels had pitched their tents and driven their stakes in the desert's edge rather than in his heart.

Truly, Angels was not much to be thankful for, as the exile from the east regretfully admitted when he looked out upon it from the windows of his office in the second story of the Crow's Nest. A funny tracked railroad yard, flanked on one side by the repair shops, roundhouse and coal chutes and on the other by a struggling town of bare and commonplace exterior, unpainted, unfenced, treeless and wind-swept, Angels stood before him for what it was—a mere stopping place in transit for the Red Butte Western.

The new superintendent turned his back upon the depressing outlook and held his hand upon the latch of the door opening into the adjoining room. There was a thing to be said about the reckless bunching of trains out of reach of the wires, and it might as well be said now as later, he determined. But at the moment of door opening he was made to realize that a tall, boxlike contrivance in one corner of the office was a desk and that he was disabled.

The man who rose up to greet him was bearded, heavy shouldered and hollow eyed, and he was past middle age. Green cardboard covers protecting his shirt sleeves and a shade of the same material covering the sunken eyes were the only clerical suggestions about him.

"You are Mr. Hallock?" Lidgerwood made the guess without offering to shake hands, the high, boxlike desk forbidding the attempt.

"Yes," the answer was neither antagonistic nor pleasurable; it was merely colorless.

"My name is Lidgerwood. You have heard of my appointment?"

Again the colorless "Yes."

"Mr. Ford spoke to me about you last night. He told me that you had been Mr. Cumberland's chief clerk and that since Cumberland's resignation you have been acting superintendent of the Red Butte Western. Do you want to stay on as my lieutenant?"

For the long minute that Hallock took before replying the loose flapped mouth under the shaggy mustache seemed to have lost the power of speech; but when the words finally came they were shorn of all euphuism.

"I suppose I ought to put on my coat and walk out," said this most sluggish of all railway subordinates. "By all the rules of the game this job belongs to me; you'd better give me a time check and let me go."

Lidgerwood walked to the window and once more stared out upon the dreary prospect, bounded by the bluffs of the second mesa. When he turned back to the man in the pile pit desk he could not have told why the words of regret and dismissal which he had made up his mind to say refused to come. But they did refuse, and what he said was not at all what he had intended to say.

"Mr. Hallock, I appreciate your disappointment. I know what it means to a man, obligated as you are, not withstanding I want you to stay with me. I'll say more, I shall take it as a personal favor if you will stay."

"You'll be sorry for it if I do," was the ungracious rejoinder.

"Not because you will do anything to make me sorry, I am sure," said the new superintendent in his evenest tone. And then, as if the matter were definitely settled, "I'd like to have a word with the trainmaster, Mr. McCloskey. May I trouble you to tell me which is his office?"

Hallock waved a hand toward the door, which Lidgerwood had been about to open a few minutes earlier.

"You'll find him in there," he said briefly, adding, with his altogether remarkable disregard for the official proprieties, "if he gives you the same chance that I did don't take him up. He is the one man in this outfit worth more than the powder it would take to blow him to the devil."

CHAPTER IV. AT THE RIO GLORIA.

THIS matter to be taken up with McCloskey, master of trains and chief of the telegraph department, was not altogether disciplinary. In the summarizing conference at Copah, Vice President Ford had spoken favorably of the trainmaster, recommending him to move in the event of a general headquartering in the Angels headquarters. "He is a snubber as a mule, but he is honest and outspoken. If you can win him over to your side you will have at least one lieutenant whom you can trust and who will, I think, be duly grateful for small favors. Mac couldn't get a job east of the Crosswater hills. I'm afraid."

Lidgerwood had lived in the west long enough to know that it is an ill thing to pry too curiously into any man's past. So there should be present efficiency. No man in the service should be called upon to recite in ancient history, much less one for whom Ford had spoken a good word.

Like all the other offices in the Crow's Nest, that of the trainmaster was bare and uninviting. Two chairs, a cheap desk and a pine table backed by the "stringboard" working model of the current time table, did duty as the furnishings.

McCloskey was at his desk at the moment of door opening. The trainmaster was homely, and more; his hard featured face was a study in grotesques. There was fearless honesty in the shrewd gray eyes and a good promise of capability in the strong Scotch jaw and long upper lip, but the grotesque note was the one which persisted, and the trainmaster seemed willfully to accentuate it. His coat in a region where shirt sleeves predominated was a close buttoned gambler's frock, and his hat, in the country of the sombrero and the soft felt, was a derby. He rose and thrust out a hand, great jointed and knobbed like a laborer's.

"You're Mr. Lidgerwood, I take it?" said he, tilting the derby to the back of his head. "Come to tell me to pack my kit and get out?"

"Not yet, Mr. McCloskey," laughed Lidgerwood, getting his first real measure of the man in the heavy hand grip. "On the contrary, I've come to thank you for not dropping things and running away before the new management could get on the ground."

The trainmaster's rejoinder was outspokenly blunt. "I've nowhere to run to, Mr. Lidgerwood, and that's no joke. Some of the backcappers will be telling you presently that I was a train dispatcher over in God's country and that I put two trains together. It's your right to know that it's true."

"Thank you, Mr. McCloskey," said Lidgerwood simply. "That sounds good to me. And take this for yourself—the man who has done that once doesn't do it again. That is one thing, and another is this—we start with a clean slate on the Red Butte Western. No man in the service who will turn in and help us make a real railroad out of the R. R. W. need worry about his past record. It won't be dug up against him."

"That's fair, more than fair," said the trainmaster, "and I wish I could promise you that the rank and file will meet you halfway. But I can't. The road has been running itself for the past two years and more."

"I understand," said Lidgerwood, and then he spoke of the careless dispatching.

"That will be Callahan, the day man," McCloskey broke in wrathfully. "But that's the way of it. When we got through the twenty-four hours without killing somebody or smashing something I thank God and put a red mark on that calendar over my desk."

"Well, we won't go back of the returns," declared Lidgerwood.

The door leading into the room beyond the trainmaster's office opened suddenly on dry hinges, and a clattering of telegraph instruments heralded the incoming of a disreputable looking office man. Seeing Lidgerwood, he ducked and turned to McCloskey, Bradford, reporting in, had given his own paraphrase of the new superintendent's strictures on Red Butte Western dispatching.

"Seventy-one of the ditch at Gloria siding," he said, speaking pointedly to the trainmaster. "Goodbye reports it from Little Butte—says both engines are in the mixup, but he doesn't know whether they are killed or not."

"There you are," snarled McCloskey, wheeling upon Lidgerwood. "They couldn't let you get your chair warmed the first day?"

Lidgerwood might blamelessly have turned over the trouble call to his trainmaster. But he took command at once.

"Go and clear for the wrecking train and have some one in your office notify the shops and the yard," he said briskly, compelling the attention of the dispatcher. And when Callahan was gone, "Now, Mac, get out your map and post me. I'm a little lame on geography yet. Where is Gloria siding?"

McCloskey found a blue print map of the line and traced the course of the western division among the foothills to the base of the Great Thunyanys and through the Timanyon canyon to a parallel valley. At a point midway of the valley his stubby forefinger rested.

"That's Gloria," he said, "and here's Little Butte, twelve miles beyond."

"Good ground?" queried Lidgerwood.

"As pretty a stretch as there is anywhere west of the desert. I don't know what excuse those horses could find for piling a train in the ditch there."

"We'll hear the excuse later," said Lidgerwood. "Now, tell me what sort of wrecking plant we have."

"The best in the bunch," asserted the trainmaster. "Gridley's is the one department that has been kept up to date and in good fighting trim. We have one wrecking crane that will pick up any of the big freight pullers, and a lighter one that isn't half bad."

"Who is your wrecking boss?"

"Gridley—when he feels like going out. He can clear a main line quicker than any man we've ever had."

"He will go with us today?"

"I suppose so. He is in town, and he's sober."

The new superintendent caught at the hesitant word.

"Gridley, does he?"

"Not much while he is on the job. But he disappears periodically and comes back looking something the worse for wear. They tell tough stories about him over in Copah."

"I'll go and run through my desk mail and fill Hallock up while you are making ready," said the new superintendent. "Call me when the train is made up."

Passing through the corridor on the way to his private office back of Hallock's room, Lidgerwood saw that the wreck car had already reached the shops. A big, bearded man with a soft hat pulled over his eyes was directing the makeup of a train on the repair track.

There was little time for the doing of the preliminary work which Lidgerwood had meant to do. In the midst of the letter sorting McCloskey called for him.

With a few hurried directions to Hallock, Lidgerwood joined the trainmaster on the Crow's Nest platform. The train was backing up to get its clear track orders, and on the tool car platform stood the big man whom Lidgerwood had already identified presumptively as Gridley.

McCloskey would have introduced the new superintendent when the train paused for the signal from the dispatcher's window, but Gridley did not wait for the formalities.

"Come aboard, Mr. Lidgerwood," he called genially. "It's too bad we have to give you a seventeen welcome. If there are any of the crew left alive you ought to give them thirty days for calling you out before you could shake hands with yourself."

Lidgerwood's impulse was to hold all men at arm's length until he was reasonably assured of sincerity and a common ground. But the genial master mechanic refused to be put on probation. Lidgerwood made the effort while the rescue train was whipping around the hill shoulders and plunging deeper into the afternoon shadows of the great mountain range. The tool car yanked, comfortably filled, with men and working tackle, and for seats there were only the backing timbers, the tool boxes and the coils of rope and chain cables. Shivering a tool box with Gridley and smoking a cigar out of Gridley's pocket case, Lidgerwood found it difficult to be less than friendly.

It was to little purpose that he recalled Ford's qualified recommendation of the man who had New York backing and who, in Ford's phrase, was a "brute after his own peculiar fashion." Brute or human, the big master mechanic had the manners of a gentleman, and his easy good nature broke down all the barriers of reserve that his somewhat reticent companion could interpose.

"You smoke good cigars, Mr. Gridley," said Lidgerwood, trying, as he had tried before, to wrench the talk aside from the personal channel into which it seemed naturally to drift.

"Good tobacco is one of the few luxuries the desert leaves a man capable of enjoying. It is a savage life, Mr. Lidgerwood, and if a man hasn't a good bit of the blood of his stone age ancestors in him the desert will either kill him or make a beast of him. There doesn't seem to be any medium."

The talk was back again in the personal channel, and this time Lidgerwood met the issue fairly.

"You have been saying that in one form or another ever since we left Angels. Are you trying to scare me off, Mr. Gridley, or are you only giving me a friendly warning?" he asked.

The master mechanic laughed easily. "I hope I wouldn't be impudent enough to do either on such short acquaintance," he protested. "But now that you have opened the door perhaps a little hint to man frankness won't be amiss. You have tackled a pretty hard proposition, Mr. Lidgerwood."

"Technically, you mean?"

"No, I didn't mean that, because if your friends tell the truth about you you can come as near to making bricks without straw as the next man. But the Red Butte Western reorganization asks for something more than a good railroad officer. What will you do when a conductor or an engineer whom you have called on the carpet curses you out and invites you to go home?"

"I shall fire him," was the prompt rejoinder. (To be Continued.)
